The CorelDRAW Text Macro language allows the user to create macros and access macros. Macro functions are selected by pressing the Windows key and the number assigned to a macro function. Pressing Enter during macro function selection places a text macro in the current file. Macros can be used to automate repetitive tasks or simply to save typing. Macros can be used to automate the creation of text and drawings or to insert text, graphics or other text or drawing content into documents. Create text boxes, objects and other text items on the Mac system screen or create text or graphics files using a predefined set of text object settings. Create text objects from graphics, insert text directly from the Mac System Screen into your document, add a drop shadow, a reflection or other effects to your text items. Create text items from objects on the Mac screen. You can also change the color or style of any text item using a predefined set of text item style settings. Animate text and graphics using Mac system timers and AppleScript. Using Mac system scripts, you can automate almost any computer activity using Mac application scripts. Many Mac system scripts, for example, are used to make Mac applications run at predefined times. You can use Mac scripts to change your printer settings, automate your disk partitioning, perform scheduled backups, play your favorite music, play your favorite video clips, and even log into your Internet service provider. Text objects for Mac systems can be created using the Mac system palette. Add text, graphics and other items to your documents with the Mac system text selection tool, the Mac system text matrix tool, and the Mac system application text builder. Use the Mac system Text builder to create custom text formatting features. Insert text or graphics directly from the Mac system screen using the Mac system icon text and icon tool. Macro functions can be created with the Mac system Macro Builder, with Mac system form bars, or with the Mac system text macro language. For example, you can create text macros that automatically generate a printout of the text you type into your Mac screen. Create Mac system macros to customize menus, to control the user interface, to speed up your computer, and to make your computer do almost anything you want. If you are creating a large Mac system script, you may want to split the script into multiple text files. The Mac system document wizard can help you do this. You can then combine the text files into a single Mac system document file using the Mac system file wizard. You can split your text file into separate 77a5ca646e
