When comparing Anisotropic Filtering vs Godot Engine 2.1.1, the Slant community recommends Anisotropic Filtering for the following reason: Anisotropic Filtering has better built-in shadows. See more about it in the shadows section. Pro Better built-in shadows Anisotropic Filtering has better built-in shadows. These can be used to greatly affect many aspects of the rendering. Pro More realistic reflections Anisotropic Filtering renders a more realistic reflection effect by giving the water surface a slightly wider area to
